Superstar One of the Best films ever made.Â .Q:

jquery - how to make ajax function be more efficient - re-fetching data? If I have an ajax function defined like this:

$(document).on('click','.faq',function(){ var
    $this = $(this), questionNumber =
$this.data('question-number'); $.getJSON('/ques tions/'+questionNumber).done(function(data){
    $this.hide(); if(data.type ==='success'){
        $('#faq_'+questionNumber).empty();
$('#faq_'+questionNumber).append(data.html);
    } }); }); This works and $.getJSON() fetches the data just fine - but there are sometimes 300+ questions on the page, so it would be REALLY beneficial if the page only refreshed when necessary. I have tried to add a "refresh" button next to the faq list, but it doesn't work like that.

So how to make the page only update when there is new data and not re-fetch the data everytime something changes? I also really appreciate if anyone could give any advice on what is a more efficient way to achieve this, instead of $.getJSON() fetching a lot of data and the same functions all the time. Many thanks!

A: No. I have a lot of enemies in the jQuery community. Define a refresh button (or any other semantic element) and bind an action to it. `$(".refresh").click(function() { $(".someOtherElement").load("someplace/somefile.html"); });`
