bHaptics is bringing it's TactSuit X16 and X40 haptics to life in their first title 'Live Tower'. bHaptics' proprietary Haptotrace game engine allows for the game's two TouchDevs to create custom experiences for the Vive. Live Tower is a platform-based game, where users can challenge each other to earn "Stars" and "Bucks" for reaching previously set goals. Each tower, upon being defeated, disappears from the map, while a computer opponent takes its place. A popular pastime in the Live Tower is playing "Cheshire", a break-out with common objectives such as clearing the board, completing a level, or clearing the most levels.

bHaptics is bringing their game 'Live Tower' to Vive in collaboration with the Vive's TouchDevs. Get in the game by signing up for this years TouchDev Activity. After signing up you'll be notified of the free demo of bHaptics' Vive exclusive title. bHaptics is excited to announce that the game is headed to Steam Early Access in July. We want to thank everyone for their support on getting 'Live Tower' to this point. As a thank you, we are offering a free Vorpal Asset Pack to anyone who pre-orders 'Live Tower' on Steam. Vorpal is a free for all community driven asset pack by TouchDev Alexander and can be viewed here: The TouchDevs are very excited to introduce a brand new feature in Live Tower. TouchDev Danielle Solon came up with the idea to add a new type of card to the game. This new card type will be known as the Pie. The Pie will be placed on the map with a randomized bonus card. The Pie will allow for players to earn extra Star tokens. Most importantly, the Pie will c9d1549cdd

The game starts out with you and your troops in possession of an old unrefined experimental invention called the Remote Control. The R.C. enables you to remotely control vehicles as they travel across vast, open, hazardous terrain and defeat your enemies using weapons you select from a menu. Your goal is to reach the enemy's base, destroy it and return home with your men in one piece. As you progress through the game you collect materials and weapons, you destroy enemies and build or upgrade your machines, all while developing a strategy that allows you to keep your men alive and maximizing the damage you deal to your enemies. The game is played in real time. You battle your enemies in a 2D plane. Your men move and attack in real time as they run around shooting and fighting for dear life. All enemies and resources are visible on the field of battle, and when an enemy is killed the money, materials or power-ups dropped will remain where they fell, for use by your men when they respawn at your base. Tiny Troopers is a cartoony fun shooter that runs on a very simple and easy to learn to play system. There is no need to learn complicated menus or button combinations like I had to do in games like Geometry Wars or Borderlands. There are no game elements that are unresponsive or difficult to control. You have your cross hairs (which control the aim and direction of your men), your left analog stick which controls where your men move around the battlefield and your trigger buttons which fire your weapon. The aiming system is the most sensitive of all 3 controls, so I'd recommend a good gamepad and some practice first. You have a few standard weapons, but most of them can be upgraded over time to a point. The reason I love this game is that even though there's a couple of weapons in the game that are also your main weapons (so they are easy to play with), the majority of the weapons you use are secondary weapons that you have to find and upgrade. This means that each one of them has it's own little storyline and you don't get stuck with only that weapon the whole game. There are dozens of machines, parts and other weapons in the game. You can not only keep your men alive, but you can also do great damage to the enemies while your men are unarmed.

You can even attack an enemy that's just sitting there and not moving, and even though they can do it back to you, your men will kill them with ease. The game

Teens and drinking culture (audio) In these recordings, teens discuss the drinking culture and try to avoid getting involved in the alcohol culture. More than half of teens surveyed recently said that while they think alcohol isn't good for them, most people they know drink. If teens have friends who drink, they themselves drink too, and they think it's easy to slip into a bad drinking habit. What teens say "I feel like alcohol is kind of just a part of college life. Everyone's getting drunk. We're spending a lot of time drinking." "There's not a lot of opportunities to be around people who don't drink, so most of my friends have some sort of drinking problem." "People can be a part of a minority within a minority. For example, I'm in a minority in my neighborhood because I'm the only one who drinks on a daily basis. In high school, everyone drinks and nobody ever says anything about it. Nobody ever questions it, and I don't think anybody challenges the fact that everybody drinks." "It's not a question of getting up and not drinking or a question of not going out and not drinking. If you're in a situation where there's limited time with your friends, it's going to be hard to abstain because you're going to be the one leaving in the end. It's like sports. If you're participating in the drinking, you have to drink for the sake of the group." "I don't think the drinking is just a situation where everyone chugs beer all the time. I think there's a lot of people who just don't drink. An average of about one in four people is a non-drinker. They go to parties, but they stay outside with friends, watching from inside. They aren't gonna go around telling everybody that they don't drink." "There are other ways to celebrate. You can go to a party without getting drunk. I have a lot of friends who do that. Me, I hate parties, and I hate drinking, but I will go to a party that doesn't involve alcohol and still have fun. It's kind of nice that I

In the greatest of times we find ourselves in the greatest of falls. The time of darkness has come, the four gods have fallen, and those with the strength to survive shall stand strong in the thick of the fight. Welcome to Carth. Our Story: The universe is young, the suns are new, and the world is almost unknown. Starlight in the distance alone reveals a vast expanse of strange land beneath an infinite sky and far beyond. Our story is simple: born from the mistakes of the past we must triumph over the searing winds of change. Only by sticking together through the cycles of death can we all become something truly alive. Our Features: Survival Your survival in Carth is your most important concern. Defeat your foes, heal your body, craft your weapons, build your defenses, and survive. Open World Explore the vast lands of Carth and enjoy a large open world map that will never be the same twice. Huge Items As you explore the lands of Carth you will be able to find many large and epic items that will enhance your game play. Special Events Special Events are scheduled throughout the year. As these events roll around you will be able to participate in the events and reap their benefits. Single and Multiplayer We have made our game to be fully compatible with LAN and Online play. You can play singleplayer online or offline through special servers, however players can also play in any number of player versus player match. Huge Customization With the world of Carth being so large there will always be many resources to be found to purchase and upgrade whatever you desire. Team Fortresses A team fortress is another feature that we have included in the game. As a team fortresses break down you will be able to swap between the fortresses you have on your side as and when needed. Mods Mods will be available to download for players that wish to further enhance their gameplay experience. Your Character As you navigate through the lands of Carth you will be able to build and customize a character that will give you an advantage in the world of Carth. Local and Online Multiplayer There is no Local Multiplayer in this game. Many games on this platform and platform before it, have attempted to bring Local Multiplayer to the masses. While Local Multiplayer has brought many games such as Counter-Strike: Global Offensive, PUBG, and others to the forefront, it has also made them very

Info: This is a REALLY BIG (bigger than usual) mod. So be warned before you start downloading it. The MOD itself is bigger than the RARE pokemon mod. So make sure you have enough space and ram. Or your PC may be completely wiped out. Also, just to mention, this mod only changes the texture of each pokemon. So it will only affect the sprites, I'm sure you can find tons of pokemon mods that change the
