This invention relates to a method and apparatus for detecting oil pollution, and more particularly to detecting oil slicks or slicks of chemically dispersed oil. Under present EPA regulations, it is required that oil, petroleum products or petroleum containing substances containing 2.5 parts of carbon dioxide per hundred parts of the whole mass be detected when the whole mass is in a condition to be released to the atmosphere. A typical daily release in the United States is in the neighborhood of 50,000 barrels per day. To detect this 50,000 barrels per day, one would have to monitor at least 2500 tanks. To the best of knowledge, no convenient method or apparatus has been developed to monitor a large number of tanks, particularly tanks containing petroleum products or petroleum containing substances. ## What's new in The Owl Quest:

game yet, and newer people have not even experienced the beta. What do you suggest? I think it's more subjective than objective why you think the experience is worth it. For me I've experienced success after success in the years leading up to beta. But I see some people find it "boring" and "plain" and thus they ceased from playing. Personally I think it's not "boring" but rather "grinding". The experience might not be that exciting, but it's certainly still worth it for my type of player (hunt-em up and shoot till enemies drop). I've been offline for 8 months and I'm probably going to go back and relearn the AI mechanics. Because doesn't that defeat the whole point of the beta? You pre order the game now, and get the beta out for you. Then you have to pay cash or what not. Which seems to defeat the purpose of the game being beta now. Should be like a Blizzard Beta/Release. Then when people see you playing, they just think, "Well, they could have been playing this awesome beta you keep talking about." It's sad because that mentality decays away gaming experience. Plus I'd go back to the patches for vanilla. You get beaten down and the game is more streamlined and organized. They've toned down the combat and the running around. The Oracular Bibliotheca of Yore. The Pomeranian Discordance. The Yig, the Pale Fire, The Blue Crystal, Red Star. All of this stuff never got removed because those changes didn't happen during the beta. So it's different than getting the beta out now. GunKour has a lot of content; you can level up your characters and defeat your enemies. You can also upgrade and gain new abilities for your characters, this way you will be able to survive longer and earn more points. You can also buy Weapons/Ammo with your earned points. The game has a HUD (Heads Up Display) that shows your health, ammo and Weapons. The HUD also shows where enemies are, items and the location of your killer. If you pick up weapons, they will automatically know where the weapon is on the map. GunKour is a Single Player game, where you can play at your leisure. You have no restrictions on game play and can play on your device 24/7. The game is free to play but contains optional in-app purchases. We do not allow any adult, drug, gambling, tobacco, alcohol, weapon or sexual activities. You can purchase these using real cash. The in-game content cannot be redistributed without our permission. We only advertise to you if you opt-in to the optional in-app purchases or if you purchase our game using your iTunes account. All the in-app purchases are optional and optional purchases are not available for all apps. The optional purchases or non-optional purchases are displayed as banners on-screen and in the in-game menu. We ask for some information to help us improve GunKour, which will make us more honest to our players. We will not send more than 10 emails to you, if you do not wish to receive emails please write in the settings menu, you can opt out from here. You can change your password to a new password, every 2 months using security question. Can go without, but likely not worth it. Poor controls. By madewithlove22 The controls are terrible. I have tried to play this game for 30 minutes and can not get more than 10 kills before having to quit out and try again. By mommyboyboy This game gets a 5/10. A game with 2 player mode does not get a 10, but an 8. The idea is good. But the game is very laggy. Once you get 10 kills, and in-game cash is gone, you will have to wait hours to get another 50 kills. By Shivah Pawar Like any other fps game once your in the match you

- Anti Virus
- setup

Apps

I use uTorrent to download all the stuff and I have an EULA I waived before i use the PP and paid version. I use WinaXperts MCOP (in which you can bootup the media) and use it to make a perfect.ISO copy. :)

I use DaemonTools to shrink the ISO to about 400 Mb with a.ISO file. This is the cd/dvd image if you want to play it in CD or DVD and also to run it from MSXSoft.VDI file, as with games you use MSXsoft (just make sure that you are proper booted into it, remember MSXsoft is the os of CD-roms and bootloaders).

In XTIP I opted for Windoze XP for 2 reasons :

- There is a better ways to run empire for players firstly
- It's good that its available in approx 600 Mb
