Why Should You Learn Photoshop? The number one reason to learn Photoshop is that using its features and those of other programs will help you understand how digital imaging works, so you can get a better understanding of the concepts and get better results yourself. Secondly, Photoshop is widely used in the industry, so it's extremely useful to work on projects that revolve around images and basic editing. It is a very easy program to learn, so it can be a good stepping stone for those that want to explore or already use another imaging program. Start by downloading an offline installer version of Photoshop. It's free and you can download a trial for free to test it out. On a Mac, install is as simple as downloading a single file, double-clicking on the.dmg installer package, and following the on-screen prompts. If you are using Windows, download the Photoshop trial and go to Start > Run. The dialogue box will pop up asking if you want to run the Photoshop software. While you are downloading and installing Photoshop, it is a good idea to check the Internet for free tutorials on how to use Photoshop effectively. You may need to experiment to find out what works best for you, or even use Photoshop's quick start guide for a general overview. Once installed, Photoshop has a broad set of tools for editing images. It includes several filters, adjustment layers, tools for painting and smudging, such as the pencil tool, which lets you draw on images and adjust their outlines. Users are also able to create layers and merge them together to edit multiple layers simultaneously. Once a layer is created, it is editable with effects such as color correction, masking, gradients, special effects, and the ability to adjust levels (brightness and contrast). Trash Your Image In order to start working on a new image, you will need to get rid of the old one. You can do this in several ways. First, you can delete the old file from the Finder's trash can. You can then recreate the new image with the new file. However, there is a faster way to get rid of the old image. Highlight the old image and hold down the Command (Command on a Mac) and Option (Option on a Mac) keys at the same time. This moves the selection of the active layer to the selection tool and lets you select the entire image on the active layer. Simply press the Delete key and the image will be deleted.

Q: Excel function with date range filter "compare to today" I need to compare some dates in a range to today's date. I want to be able to pass a date range filter to work with. So I will have a range of dates, say from date 1 to date N. Then I will have a date range filter, say date 1 to date 10. My goal is to have a range of dates that I can search for today and then display the matching dates of that range. From this list I can do a conditional formatting on the dates, like highlighting the today's date. Or have a message box popup when I click on a date (when compared to today). Is there a formula to compare date ranges, like say date 1 to date 10 to today? Thanks. A: This will show you what the function needs to do: =IF(AND(DATE(2018,12,31,7,0,0)Plantar fasciitis: a review.
